10 years of cooperation: BRICS moves forward and adheres to its mission

According to the Department of Commerce of China, this province is accelerating the reform and opening of the manufacturing industry. As Chinese President Xi Jinping said, the core task of BRICS members of improving the proportion of traditional manufacturing industries, and guiding the rational transfer of industries through the dual motive of industry and class industrial clusters.

Guangqi Rao Yunnan has also undertaken export-oriented industrial transfer from the provinces adjacent to Yunnan along with industrial transfer from the middle and lower reaches of the Yangtze River. Population distribution, industrial layout and resource and environment carrying capacity have been planned in their entirety to avoid the same problem. Yunnan also makes use of global industrial parks to improve the export-oriented economic development level of the provinces and cities in Yunnan province in the Yangtze River Basin.

Yunnan has enhanced partner assistance and cooperation between Shanghai and Yunnan. As the city's focus on the improvement of the railway system, the construction of the railway line from Shanghai to Kunming has been completed. Yunnan also has a national railway network, which is an important part of China's comprehensive economic, cultural, and educational network, including the BRICS intra-regional cooperation. China has focused on the development of traditional industries and has been successful in its efforts to reduce the proportion of traditional industries. As a result, the proportion of traditional industries in the Yangtze River region has increased, and Yunnan is also part of the Belt and Road economic region.
